

The Royal Commonwealth Society and Henley Media release Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting 2015 Report

On the eve of the formal opening of the Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting (CHOGM) in Malta, The Royal Commonwealth Society and Henley Media Group have released a reference book addressing major themes of the modern Commonwealth and interviews with the current candidates for the post of Commonwealth Secretary-General. Australian diplomat, Matthew Neuhaus makes some cogent suggestions for a reform agenda for the new Commonwealth Secretary-General.

Mmasekgoa Masire-Mwamba from Botswana, Sir Ronald Sanders from Antigua and Barbuda and Baroness Patricia Scotland, (Dominican by birth) from the United Kingdom all outline their visions for the Commonwealth and why they think they should be the next Commonwealth Secretary-General.

Other contributors include President of Malta, Marie-Louise Coleiro Preca, HRH The Prince of Wales, Prime Minister of the United Kingdom, David Cameron, President of Nigeria, Muhammadu Buhari, Prime Minister of Australia, Malcolm Turnbull, President of South Africa, Jacob Zuma, and Kofi Annan.

Notes to Editors:

An online 'flipbook' version of the report can be accessed here:

http://issuu.com/henleymedia/docs/chogm_2015_report_lo-res

Contact:

Carolyn Jack, Chief Operating Officer, The Royal Commonwealth Society
T: +44 (0)7718 476 233 | E: carolyn.jack@thercs.org

Elizabeth van der Valk, Programmes Officer, The Royal Commonwealth Society

T: +44 (0)7718 476 233 | E: elizabeth.vandervalk@thercs.org

Hard copies available from the Royal Commonwealth Society on request: Room 18, CHOGM Media Centre.